This week I got all the stuff needed for the dim circuit for the glcd display and also the circuit for the speedometer. I am currently looking into permanent wiring system for them also. They have to be secure and also water proof because the speedometer reading will be mounted by the front driver tire. Once we get the glcd display working and the voltage regulator we can connect the speedometer. Eric has already wrote the code for it.