This past week we have updated our main code in order to follow easier. We have also set it up where the sample point database can be created with a single run of the program instead of restarting the program for every point. This will greatly reduce the time it takes to create our database.